

External printer (option) can print instantly the results from the milk analyzer or create a paper report for a client by number and liters

Wireless technology for exchanging data (option)

pH measurement (option) is used to determine the acidic or caustic composition of the milk sample.

Flash drive (option) is used for collecting and transferring measurement data from the milk analyzer.

